THE PLAN FOR HARMONY
THE MCKINLEY MEN HAD AN OVER-POWERING MAJORITY.

Views of the Silver Men Ignored Entirely—McKinley Men Ruled With an Iron Hand—Proxy Holders Passed on Their Own Credentials—One Convention to Be Held to Nominate McKinley Electors and Elect a State Committee at Mt. Pleasant September 24th—Another to Name a Congressional Candidate at Ogden the 20th—Democratic County Committee Meets—Makes Preparations for Beginning the Campaign—Chairman Powers Appoints Part of His Executive Committee and a Silver Conference Committee—Political Practice.

A decision to call two state conventions, one to nominate McKinley and Hobart electors and elect a state committee, and another to nominate a silver Republican candidate for Congress, was the net result of the meeting of the Republican state committee yesterday.

By this action the committee fulfilled what had been expected of it for several days, so far as the expectation that a plan would be adopted having for its object the harmonizing of the silver and McKinley elements on the state ticket was concerned, but the expected compromise between the contending factions in the committee was not effected in the result reached. It had been supposed that the silver men would give a voice in formulating the plan ultimately decided upon, or that the silver element of the party would at least be given some recognition of the views of their representatives on the committee, but such was not the case. The McKinley men had an overpowering majority and refused to listen to the silver men who represented the great mass of the Republican voters.

The action of the committee was in no sense a compromise between the two elements, as it was voted through by a strict factional vote, the McKinley men voting for the silver men dead against every proposition.

The division of the McKinley forces on Brown and anti-Brown lines, which many anticipated, did not materialize, and in fact much that occurred was contrary to what had been foreboded. Up to the evening previous to the meeting Senator Brown's generals had been urging that nothing be done but issuing the customary call for a convention, supposing that the two-convention idea found its origin in the affinity between the Tribune as leading the silver men and the Standard as leading the McKinley men.

Dooly and his chief aid, ex-Governor Thomas, all of whom were to be considered as antagonistic to Mr. Brown. Late that evening, however, a new light shone across the path of the Brown generals. They saw by it a way to combine the full McKinley vote and by deft management still contrive to hold the winning hand in the end by supporting the two-convention plan and not allowing it to appear that they had anything in view beyond harmonizing the party.

The silver men accordingly abandoned the straight convention plan and got into the two-convention wagon, glad of the opportunity, for it was unknown to them that the silver men, with the exception of a few of the leaders, favored one convention, believing they could elect a majority of the delegates and head off the nomination of McKinley electors. Hence the action of the meeting as it transpired, the formulating of a plan for harmony but on very different lines than those originally staked out; resulting virtually in a victory for Mr. Brown, for by it he expects to dominate the selection of the new state committee, the thing he most ardently desires to do.

Judge Goodwin was expected to be present to lead the silver men, but he failed to appear. It was supposed he had learned that the silver men would be given no quarter, and decided to hold himself aloof. In his absence, Hon. Thomas Kearns and Dr. C. W. Clark held up the silver banner and worked hard and faithfully for the cause. Mr. Kearns spoke often and with great earnestness, and his little following voted with great regularity, but they were too woefully in the minority to make any impression.

The attendance was much smaller than was anticipated, as was also the presence of members by proxy more frequent. There were nineteen members represented, nine in person and ten by proxy, and of the number, four only were on the side of silver, while the rest were straight out for McKinley.

One illustration of Chairman Dooly's fairness of method of conducting a campaign for harmony was the manner in which the rule was abrogated early in the proceedings which has heretofore been adhered to in meetings of the Republican state committee, whereby persons to be entitled to sit on proxies have been required to be resident of the counties they represented. Presley Denny, of Beaver, moved that the old rule be abrogated at once and that every member of the party, no matter how far from the place, and though six of the nine members who were present in person voted to sustain the rule, they were defeated by Chairman Dooly permitting the proxies to vote on the motion.

THE MEETING.
Chairman Dooly called the meeting to order shortly before 11 o'clock, stating briefly its purpose. The roll call showed the following to be in attendance: Beaver, Presley Denny; Box Elder, E. H. Jones, proxy for John F. Rich; Cache, V. R. Jones, proxy for John F. Rich; Carbon, James A. Harrison; Emery, H. S. McCullum, proxy for Orange Sealey; Garfield, W. L. Thompson; Rich, Wesley K. Walton; Salt Lake, Campbell, proxy for George M. Cannon; Sanpete, John Lowry, proxy for Summit, Thomas Kearns; Tooele, William Spry; Utah, J. C. Graham, proxy for R. S. Collett; Utah, H. M. Douglass; Wayne, Dennis Clay Elchman, proxy for L. L. Sheffield; Weber, Edward W. Wade.

AFTER SECRETARY JULIA FARNSWORTHY had read the call Presley Denny, of Beaver, moved that the rule heretofore observed in Republican committee meetings be enforced whereby a person holding a proxy, to be entitled to sit on the committee, be required to be a resident of the county represented, and that such other persons as held proxies be not permitted to sit. Hon. Thomas Kearns seconded the motion, but the chair refused to entertain it, and the matter was dropped.

Mr. Denny called for his motion and took the floor to speak to it. He had hardly commenced his remarks when he was interrupted by Mr. Campbell, who raised the point of order that his motion was the question before the house and that Mr. Denny was not speaking to the question. Mr. Denny insisted that he was the first motion, and Chairman Dooly said he had no second.

Mr. Kearns, of Summit, jumped up and informed the chair that he had seconded the motion but Mr. Dooly was evidently afraid some dirty party line was going to be drawn, and did not care to have the outside world in which would be included the rank and file of the party, make acquainted with the inner workings of the committee. He then moved that the second to Mr. Thompson's motion first, notwithstanding that Mr. Kearns' second had been plainly audible in all parts of the room.

Mr. Dooly, in speaking to his motion, but Mr. Dooly put that of Mr. Thompson and declared it carried.

Mr. Denny renewed his motion and in support of it said he could see no good reason for doing away with an old established rule. He thought if it was good enough for the silver men, it could see how strangers to a community could better represent its sentiment now than other strangers had formerly been considered unable to do so. Besides, he said, he desired to invoke the rule at the next meeting.

Mr. Kearns favored invoking the rule. He said he did not think a person who did not reside in a county could properly represent the sentiment of the people of the county.

Wesley K. Walton of Rich advocated sustaining the rule, and was followed by Nathan Campbell, chairman of the National committee, and by R. Rogers, who advocated admitting all proxies. Mr. Rogers held a proxy for Iron county.

Ex-Governor Thomas and Dennis Clay Elchman also spoke, and their proxies had been sent to them, and said they felt they should be permitted to represent the counties from which the proxies came. Mr. Rogers moved to lay Denny's motion on the table, which carried after some further discussion by a vote of 12 to 6. Those voting in the negative were Denny, Beaver, Walton, Rich, Kearns, Summit, Clark of Juab, and Sanpete and Harrison of Carbon, all actual members except Mr. Clark, who is a resident of Juab. They were defeated by Chairman Dooly transmitting the holders of proxies to vote and thus pass upon their own credentials, but two actual members having voted in favor of the motion.

COMMITTEE ON PLAN.
Mr. Denny moved the appointment of a committee of five to formulate a plan for holding the two state conventions, suggest the time and apportionment, and recommend the dates for holding the county conventions. The motion carried and the chair appointed Messrs. Denny, Rogers, Thomas, Thompson and Campbell.

A recess of fifteen minutes was taken to enable the committee to report, at the end of which they further time was asked for and the main committee took a recess till 1:30.

THE REPORT.
At 1:30 the committee on plan, etc., was still unable to report and it was 2 o'clock before the main committee reconvened. At that time the committee reported, and the two state conventions be held, one on September 24, at which three electors should be nominated, who if elected should cast their votes in the electoral college for McKinley and Hobart, and to do so the members of the new state committee; that a second state convention be held on September 28 for the purpose of nominating a congressional candidate, and that the committee be empowered to elect delegates to each convention on a basis of one delegate to every five votes cast for the present chief of the supreme court, which would give the conventions a membership of 53; that the committee select the place of holding the conventions, and that the committee recommend to county committees that primaries to elect delegates to county conventions be held not later than September 16.

EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE.
Executive Committeeman Charles Melgion of Ogden, moved to adopt the report. Dr. Clark of Juab, spoke at some length ridiculing the two-convention idea, and to do so the plan contemplated was un-Republican and moved to amend the report by authorizing the chairman of the committee to call a straight convention. He spoke earnestly in favor of the amendment and was ably seconded by Mr. Kearns who asked the McKinley men if they were afraid to trust the people, if they were afraid to take their chances in one common convention of securing the nomination of McKinley electors.

Mr. Melgion opposed the amendment and advocated adopting the report as amended. His theme was evidently that the plan in the interest of harmony as that word was used more often than any other he employed.

J. C. Graham made a speech in favor of the report, taking the silver men severely to task for assuming to oppose the nomination of McKinley electors by a Republican convention. He said nothing to that effect had been heard to come from the silver men.

Messrs. Rapp, Thomas, Elchman, and McCullum all opposed the amendment, and in so doing advocated the original report, after which R. S. Campbell moved to amend the amendment by authorizing the issuance of a call for a convention to nominate three electors who, if elected, should cast their votes for McKinley and Hobart.

Mr. Kearns offered a substitute which was in effect the same as Mr. Clark's amendment. The substitute was discussed at great length, nearly every member of the party taking a hand. Meanwhile Mr. Kearns and his handful of followers piled their McKinley opponents with questions which stumped them in many instances to answer. Mr. Kearns punctuated the remarks of every speaker who opposed the adoption of the substitute with the interrogation, "are you afraid to trust the people?" to which they all replied that they were not, but that they considered it in the interest of harmony that two conventions be held.

The McKinley men were quite obviously better put, but they considered it in the interest of harmony that two conventions be held. The McKinley men were quite obviously better put, but they considered it in the interest of harmony that two conventions be held.

The question moved the previous question and the question being put, the chair announced the substitute lost on a viva voce vote. Mr. Kearns called for the ayes and nays, which resulted as follows: Ayes, 12; Nays, 20.

The four silver men voting in the affirmative were Messrs. Kearns, Clark, Lowry and Harrison.

The question recurred upon the amendment proposed by Mr. Campbell, the chair holding that Mr. Clark's amendment had been passed upon the defeat of Mr. Kearns' substitute and the question came up on the adoption of the amendment.

Mr. Campbell moved to amend by changing the dates to the 25th and 26th, which lost and the report was adopted by the same factional vote that defeated the Kearns substitute.

This question as to the places of holding the conventions then came up and the claims of the various cities of the state were set forth. A committee headed by J. A. Hyatt, of Salt Lake, was appointed to select the places, and to present the claims of that city, and after considerable further discussion it was decided to fix the place for holding the first convention at Mount Pleasant and the second at Ogden.

The chairman and secretary were authorized to issue calls for the conventions and the meeting adjourned.

THE SALT LAKE DEMOCRATIC county central committee held a meeting yesterday afternoon in the Jennings block to take the preliminary steps toward opening the campaign.

There was a large attendance of the committee, which was called to order at 4 o'clock in the afternoon by Chairman D. C. Dunbar. The first order of business was the filing of the names of the candidates for the county offices.

Ben T. Lloyd was named in place of Joseph Watson, deceased. George Taylor in place of H. C. Carlisle, absent, and John M. Cohen to represent the Fourth precinct.

The committee then constituted itself a county central committee, consisting of D. C. Dunbar, chairman; Ben T. Lloyd, vice-chairman; Will C. Jennings, secretary; A. M. Cannon, Jr., W. J. Poulton, J. M. Cook, J. E. Ennis, Draper, George Taylor, Mill Creek.

These gentlemen will act as the central committee until the meeting of the county convention.

PRIMARIES SEPT. 15.
It was decided that primaries to select delegates to the county convention be held in all the precincts of the county on Tuesday, Sept. 15, at 8 p. m., and that the ratio of representation be fixed at the uniform apportionment of five delegates for each of such districts.

COUNTY CONVENTION SEPT. 19.
The committee agreed upon Saturday, Sept. 19 at 10 a. m., as the time, and Salt Lake as the place for holding the county convention.

COUNTY OFFICERS.
As Salt Lake county is one senatorial and one judicial district, in addition to nominating a full set of county officers, it will name also five state senators and ten representatives, and select delegates to the judicial convention (to be called) and the state convention, both to be held at Provo, Sept. 24.

CONFERENCE COMMITTEE.
In view of the fact that so many citizens of the county are anxious to have the county officers elected on a basis of representation throughout the county, have indicated a readiness to support the Democratic candidate for president and to work in harmony with those who advocate the silver cause, it was deemed advisable to select a "committee on conference," with full power to communicate with and aid in whatever form of organization they may deem proper, and to make such arrangements as may be deemed wise.
